OFFICE TALK

This month we are focusing on gentleness. Gentleness is not always a quality that comes naturally to us, especially during conflict. We read a devotion that talked about a boy screaming at his brother after his brother bumps into him accidentally. Rather than using gentle words, he barked at his brother and resorted to name calling. The lesson in the devotion challenges kids to think about how they respond to situations when they've been "bumped". The brother's harsh words showed what was really in his heart. When you have patience and compassion, you tend to be more gentle when confrontation arises. However, if anger and bitterness reside in your heart it is difficult to treat people and situations with a gentle attitude.

Christ treated situations and people with a gentle heart. There were many instances when he could have acted with righteous anger, or had ample opportunity to raise his voice. In most situations he kept his cool and remained gentle with his words. Even when he was on the cross dying for our sins, he did not lash out in anger, or defend himself in rage. He gently and humbly bore our burden. He showed how being gentle is really having strength under control.

This month as we reflect on gentleness, it is our prayer that we treat every situation and person with a gentle spirit, even during conflict.
